Why we ask you to complete a profile?

Our clients are leading firms who can attract and retain the very best performers in our industry. We operate at executive level, and our contacts invariably want to quickly understand the abilities and achievements of candidates. A resume is important -- but the high points are all in the profile.

Most key roles are never advertised, but are filled by firms such as ours, who specialize in bringing good people to the attention of key people in top firms.

By completing this profile, you give us the tools to market you effectively, position you well with our clients, and find you opportunities that might otherwise not be available to you.
